Introduction

"NOW MORE THAN EVER, students need the intellectual power to recognize societal problems; ask good questions and develop robust investigations into them; consider possible solutions and consequences; separate evidence-based claims from parochial opinions; and communicate and act upon what they learn. And most importantly, they must possess the capability and commitment to repeat that process as long as is necessary. Young people need strong tools for, and methods of, clear and disciplined thinking in order to traverse successfully the worlds of college, career, and civic life."

-----The College, Career, and Civic Life (C3) Framework for Social Studies State Standards

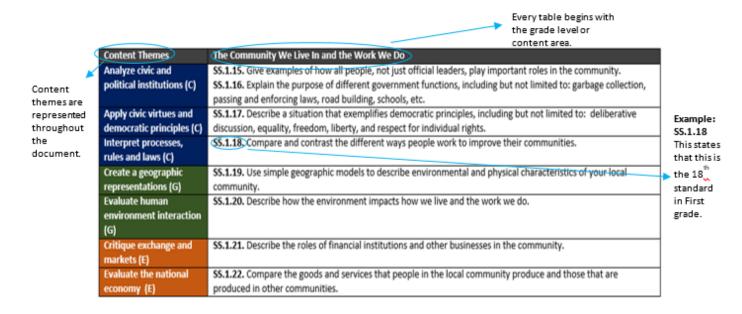

Social studies education is the foundation of our republic. Social studies education provides all students with a foundation in democratic principles and civic responsibility that they will need to create an enlightened, inclusive, and innovative nation. These K-12 social studies standards highlight the framework for professional deliberation and planning for social studies education in Nevada. The standards are meant to help educators create a student-centered approach to social studies in which critical skills and inquiry are the focus, rather than simple facts and dates. These standards reflect an instructional shift, and will enhance education for every student in an increasingly complex and fast-paced society. Social studies educators, are responsible both for giving students the tools they need to be successful once they leave the classroom, as well as, shaping the civic and social consciousness of the future leaders of our country. To achieve both, less focus is needed on the recall of information and more on the development of a growth mindset and a natural curiosity in our students. The aim is to create lifelong learners who are equipped with the skills and knowledge to shape our nation's democratic institutions and respond to any challenge they may meet in the future. These standards are vertically aligned with the intention of building inquiry and civic dispositions of students year by year from kindergarten through 12th grade.

As you read through the standards, you will notice that the content of every grade level has been purposefully broadened in order to be more inclusive and better representative of the diverse population of Nevada students. Significant efforts have been made to highlight the contributions and achievements of diverse cultures and individuals to our modern world as well as the struggles that those groups have experienced throughout history and today. Our students come from a wide variety of social, racial, ethnic, cultural, and religious backgrounds and they deserve to see themselves and their histories reflected in these standards. This addition was a requirement of Nevada law, however, now the standards represent a broad range of diversity that show a more vibrant, thoughtful, and full picture of the world's history.

Overview of K-12 Standards

How to Read the Standards

The K-5 draft standards are grade specific whereas the 6-8 and 9-12 standards are organized by content area. Each K-5 grade level includes a set of disciplinary skills and content themes. You will see the same content themes throughout the document, the standard following the content theme will be more complex and more content specific as students move through their K-12 experience. The disciplinary skills provide the manner in which to study the content through a rich inquiry of primary and secondary texts and media. Each standard is coded in relation to the relating content theme for identification of its grade level and number within the larger set of standards.

Color Coding of the Standards

The standards are color-coded to allow for quick identification of the content area of the standard.

History (H)	Multicultural (MC)	Civics (C)	Geography (G)	Economics (E)

Disciplinary Skills

Each grade level within the K-12 standards includes a set of disciplinary skills. These disciplinary skills are the same throughout the document, but become more complex as students move through their K-12 social studies experience.

The K-12 Disciplinary Skills are:

- Constructing compelling questions
- Creating supporting questions
- Gathering and evaluating sources
- Developing claims and using evidence
- Communicating and critiquing conclusions
- Taking informed action

Content Themes

Each grade level within the standards includes a set of content themes that encompasses the major ideas in each of the key disciplines of social studies. The following content themes are the same throughout the document.

6th-8th Grade Band:

Students over a three year period are expected to cover the following content areas. Districts may decide the length and content of the course (semester or year) and the order in which the content is taught.

Early World Civilizations (prior to 1500)

This content area focuses on geography, history and culture in global regions, with an emphasis on disciplinary inquiry. There should be an intentional focus on spatial understanding of the world and the location of continents and countries. Students will analyze history through regional, economic, political, intellectual, environmental, and cultural characteristics of early world civilizations.

Teachers are encouraged to facilitate instruction from a chronological as well as thematic approach, thus avoiding the tendency to teacher the content as a checklist of facts to be covered. Effective instruction in social studies incorporates both the disciplinary skills and the content themes and requires historical thinking, robust academic discussions, and engaging writing instruction.

Suggested topics to study include without limitation: Mesopotamia, Egypt, China, Greco-Rome, Indus Valley, Sub-Saharan Africa, Pre-Colombian Latin America, Native cultures of North America, and Oceania. This content area traces the rise and fall of early civilizations across the globe prior to the 1500s. The standards are written in order to be applied across each early civilization, whether they are taught chronologically or thematically.

World Geography and Global Studies

This content area provides a global perspective on contemporary issues and worldwide interdependence, and is designed to create young, educated citizenship-leaders prepared to face 21st century global issues. Students will examine challenges facing the world community, including but not limited to hunger, population, conflict, racism, global environmental challenges, human rights, poverty, energy scarcity, global health, education, immigration, globalization, and other political, economic, social, and ecological concerns.

This content area builds students' skills in geographic reasoning, including an understanding of Earth's human and physical features, locations of places, and regions, the distribution of landforms and how civilizations developed and changed over time. This will lay a foundational understanding of societies and inspire curiosity in cultural and environmental diversity to help students participate in the complex cultural world we live in today.

Teachers are encouraged to facilitate instruction from a chronological as well as thematic approach, thus avoiding the tendency to teach the content as a checklist of facts to be covered. Effective social studies instruction incorporates both the disciplinary skills and the content themes and requires historical thinking, robust academic discussions, and engaging writing instruction.

Early U.S. History and Civic Ideals

This content area focuses on the history of the United States from Constitution and Nation Building through modern age. American founding documents including the Constitution, Declaration of Independence and Bill of Rights are reviewed to provide a foundation of reference throughout the content that focuses on the multicultural history, economics, civics and geography of the time period.

Students will analyze the powers and civic responsibilities of citizens and examine the origins, functions, and structure of the U.S. government. Content will include multiple historical eras beginning around the American Revolution through the early modern age. School districts may offer Course C for two semesters or three semesters (to align with the one or two semester World Studies Course B). The following scope is suggested for Districts to consider when implementing Course C.

If a District provides instruction in two semesters for Course C, instruction would include multiple historical eras from the American Revolution through the Industrial Revolution.

If a District provides instruction in three semesters for Course C, instruction could include multiple historical eras from the American Revolution through WWII.

In both course C options, students will investigate changing perspectives in America's past and make meaningful connections between historical events and eras.

Teachers are encouraged to facilitate instruction from a chronological as well as thematic approach, thus avoiding the tendency to teach the content as a checklist of facts to be covered. Effective instruction in social studies incorporates both the disciplinary skills and the content themes and requires historical thinking, robust academic discussions, and engaging writing instruction.

9-12 Grade Band:

By the end of high school, students are expected to cover the following content areas. Districts may decide the length and content of the course (semester or year) and the order in which the content is taught.

World History and Geography

This content area focuses on World History from approximately the 1300s to modern day. This content area focuses on geography, history and culture in global regions, with an emphasis on historical inquiry. Students will analyze significant events, individuals, developments and process across the world within this time frame. This content area should be taught from multiple and varied voices and perspectives for a vivid and complex picture of history. The goal of this course is to be truly global in nature, with a multicultural approach rather than a Eurocentric approach.

Teachers are encouraged to facilitate instruction from a chronological as well as thematic approach, thus avoiding the tendency to teach the content as a checklist of facts to be covered. Effective instruction in social studies incorporates both the disciplinary skills and the content themes and requires historical thinking, robust academic discussions and engaging writing instruction.

Suggested topics and concepts to study, but not limited to: Middle Ages, Renaissance and Reformation, Global Expansion, Empires and Kingdoms of the World, Enlightenment and Revolutions, Rise of Nations, Imperialism, Industrialization, Civil Rights of the 19th century, WWI, 20th century Revolutions, Global Depression, WWII, Decolonization, Cold War, Globalization, and Modern Issues.

Civics and Economics

Productive civic engagement requires knowledge of the historical foundations and principles of American democracy; understanding the unique processes of local, state and national institutions; the skills necessary to apply civic dispositions and democratic principles; and an understanding of the complex workings of the American economy. Effective instruction in social studies incorporates both the disciplinary skills and the content themes and requires historical thinking, robust academic discussions and engaging writing instruction.

Students will analyze the powers and civic responsibilities of citizens and examine the origins, functions and structure of the U.S. government. Content will include multiple historical eras and the multiple changing perspectives in America's past, as well as connections between historical events. Economics is grounded in knowledge about how people choose to use resources. Decision making within economics involves setting goals and identifying the resources available to achieving those goals. These standards provide students with the concepts and tools necessary for an economic way of thinking and help students understand the interaction of buyers and sellers in markets, workings of the national economy, and interactions within the global marketplace.

Suggested topics and concepts to study, but not limited to: Founding documents, Federal system, Legislative process, Judicial system, Executive branch, Elections, Political parties, Interest groups, Rights and Responsibilities of citizens, International relations, Public policy, Economic policies, Media literacy and Contemporary issues.
